HONG KONG—A battle for control of Stanley Ho's multibillion-dollar Macau gambling empire took yet another turn Monday, when his lawyer showed a video in which the ailing tycoon described the transfer of a major stake in his flagship casino company as "robbery."

Gordon Oldham, who reiterated Monday that he was still retained by Mr. Ho in a dispute involving the transfer of ownership of Lanceford Co., a company that is the biggest shareholder in SJM Holdings Ltd., showed video clips of interviews he conducted with Mr. Ho on Tuesday, Wednesday and Sunday to a packed media crowd.
