

Casino Blunder Makes Millionaires Out of Two Men Who Share a Name

Written by Administrator

Monday, 12 August 2013 20:03 -

A Cincinnati casino is paying up -- twice -- after it committed a million-dollar mix-up that put prize winnings in the hands of the wrong man.

Horseshoe Casino Cincinnati awarded $1 million each to two different Cincinnati natives named Kevin Lewis after it mistakenly allowed the wrong man to collect the winnings from a promotional contest it held on Saturday night, casino spokeswoman Jennifer Kulczycki told ABCNews.com.

"This was our blunder," Horseshoe Cincinnati Senior Vice President and General Manager Kevin Kline said in a statement. "So, consistent with our commitment to do the right thing for our guests, Horseshoe awarded a $1 million prize to each of the men."

The casino, which is in the midst of a $3 Million Summer Giveaway promotion, called out for Kevin Lewis to come down and collect his prize after he was selected as the winner of the August drawing at around 9 p.m. Saturday.

Casino Blunder Makes Millionaires Out of Two Men Who Share a Name

Written by Administrator

Monday, 12 August 2013 20:03 -

<https://www.foxnews.com/US/scruggs/lottery/2011/10/03/lottery-winner-25-million-dollars/>