Two people were shot Saturday night at a casino on the Las Vegas Strip, police said.

The KTNV station and the Las Vegas Review-Journal reported that the shooting took place at 7:29 p.m. at the Circus Circus casino.

The media outlets said police found the two victims suffering from gunshot wounds. They were taken to the University Medical Center.

No suspect has been arrested in connection with the shooting, and authorities do not have a description of the shooter, the media outlets report.
